REPORT
OF THE
SUB-COMMITTEE ON SUPPLIES.

MAY 1st, 1863.

THE close of the second year of our organization calls upon us to present another Annual Report to our associates. Its details will show but little change in our work, but afford good proof that, notwithstanding the general depression through which we have passed, and the greatly increased cost of materials, the truly benevolent and loyal women from whom our supplies are received have overcome all obstacles in the prosecution of their noble labors.

It gives us pleasure to mention that our auxiliaries have shown an increasing willingness to make their contributions correspond to the demand; so that, although the total amount of receipts has diminished greatly, the character of the donations has improved so much that we have been enabled to furnish our full proportion of the most valuable articles required, such as woollen shirts, drawers, and socks.

The hospitals of this vicinity have made few applications to us, both because the "Hospital Fund" proves to be nearly sufficient to meet all proper claims, and because the natural sympathy of the neighbors prompts them to contribute at times even more generously than is desirable.

While this fact will hold good in every case where a hospital is located in a peaceful and luxurious neighborhood, it presses upon us the more urgently the claims of the sick and suffering who are far from home and friends. We are informed by the President of the Sanitary Commission that one-half of our sick—numbering, probably, not less than fifty thousand—is so situated. To quote his own words : “One-half of our sick and wounded men are within the military lines, and at comparatively inaccessible points ; and there their wants are increasing. True, there, as everywhere, the Government is the soldier’s best friend, and does for him ten times more than all others can ; but at these distant places the Government labors with the greatest difficulties. Lumber to build, or buildings to serve as hospitals, are only to be had with difficulty and delay—supplies are interrupted—the country is perhaps ravaged by being the field of war, in alternate possession of friend and foe. Here it is that the hospitals require immense supplementary stores. But what local associations, representing rich cities and thickly settled states, can reach them ? It is here, when the Northern soldier, from New York, or Massachusetts, or Iowa, lies sick, or thinks himself forgotten at home, that the Government feels the need of some representative of the beneficence of the rich, abundant, prosperous homes of the loyal States, to eke out her own arrangements, to supplement the inevitable deficiencies which the nature of war and the character of the country, and perhaps the ill-trained nature of a body of bold, patriotic, but unskilled officers combine to occasion. And such a representative it finds in the United States Sanitary Commission.”

While we are fully sensible that the Commission depends wholly upon the voluntary efforts of the women of the land, we are also conscious that the burden has been unequally sustained ; and we are, therefore, desirous of deepening the interest of those who have as yet made small contributions, and of stimulating them to greater exertions. This was one of the motives for adopting the plan of extending our work, which was brought forward in our Second Semi-Annual Report ; and we have attempted to induce all the Societies which have at any time sent us donations to enter into a systematic plan of organization. To facilitate the movement, we have selected a number of ladies, who have consented to act as Associate Managers. They will communicate with all the societies in their respective districts, either by letter or by personal visits, and give such information in regard to the demand for articles, facilities for transportation, interesting items from the hospitals, &c., as may be desirable. It is our hope eventually to divide our whole field into these sections, with an Associate Manager for each. We feel much encouraged by the cordial letters already received from these ladies, and by the earnestness with which they have entered upon their new labors. Their names and addresses will be found at the beginning of this Report.

The Sanitary Commission has recently established, in this office, a directory, in which the names of all the patients in every Government hospital in New Jersey, New York, and the New England States are recorded, with the number of their regiments, and all important particulars in regard to their condition. The record is corrected by comparison with the morning reports of the hospitals. Similar directories are kept at Washington, Philadelphia, and Louisville, and hundreds of applicants have thus been relieved from anxiety, and aided in their search after missing relatives.

To enable our auxiliaries to expend all the money they may be able to collect for materials, the prices of which have increased so much, our Association will, for the present, pay all transportation charges on sanitary supplies delivered at No. 10 Cooper Union. We would, at the same time, remind our friends that the American Express Company brings all boxes sent by them free of charge. This has been their uniform practice, and has proved a most valuable donation in aid of the cause. The United States and the National Express Companies, as also the Harlem, New Haven and Long Island Railroads, have promised, through their Presidents, "to transport all packages free of charge from places along their lines for the United States Sanitary Commission."

We cannot close without making special mention of the Relief Association of Brooklyn, by which nearly half of the woollen clothing received this winter was prepared. With unexampled energy, they have awakened the interest of almost every one of the numerous congregations of their city.

Our cordial thanks are due to the ladies who have continued to assist in assorting, marking, and packing our supplies, and whose faithful attention has made that a great pleasure which otherwise would have been a serious labor.

Above all, we are indebted (speaking always on behalf of our soldiers) to the women who, with tireless devotion, have stitched together the four hundred thousand articles which we have received. Have they not proved themselves equal in patriotism to the men who, leaving their comfortable homes, have, without complaint, endured untold miseries that they may leave to others undisturbed the priceless treasure we have received from our fathers ?

In closing, we would cordially invite all our friends who have taken part in the work to visit our office, where we will gladly show them the results of their efforts.

U. S. SANITARY COMMISSION,
NEW YORK, May 7, 1863.

TO THE COMMITTEE ON SUPPLIES OF THE WOMAN'S CENTRAL RELIEF
ASSOCIATION, AT NEW YORK.

Ladies : Hearing that you are just about to publish your second Annual Report, I would respectfully ask you to include in it a suggestion or two in regard to the very natural reports of alleged unfaithfulness on the part of our agents, in the sale or abuse of the articles entrusted to our care. Instead of making a general denial of the truth of such charges (which I might very conscientiously do,) which would satisfy none but those already full of faith in the integrity and watchfulness of those who superintend our affairs, I will give the history of one or two cases, where we have followed up rumors and succeeded in tracking them to their sources. I may premise that we never fail to investigate, to the very bottom, any specific charges ; and that we are most grateful for any information which throws light upon any leaks or loop-holes of abuse in our system.

1. Rumors had been flying all over New England for many months that Sanitary Commission stores of lint and bandages had found their way into the hands of the paper makers. We followed up the story from paper mill to paper mill, but all in vain. No evidence could we put our finger on. At length, a devoted friend of our cause in Springfield, Mass., wrote me that he had the painful duty of informing me that these rumors had too solid a foundation ; that some paper makers—naming the firm and the village in Connecticut—had (as by letters which were enclosed) informed him that they had bought of an agent of the Sanitary Commission in Baltimore several tons of linen rags and bandages designed for the soldiers' use ! We instantly despatched a special agent to this village, who called on the firm. Certainly they had bought rags and bandages in Baltimore, and of a person they supposed to be an agent of the Sanitary Commission. They gave his name. He proved to be nobody connected with us. But determined to find out how he got lint, rags, and bandages for sale, we sent our agent the next day to Baltimore, to examine the man. He had sold the stuff, and he had sold it at the order of a lady, the well-known and respected head of a State Relief Association at Washington, who having more linen rags and bandages on her hands, and less of other comforts than were required, had, with the consent of the donors, sold her rags, &c., and purchased other stores with the proceeds for the benefit of the soldiers. So that story vanished.

1. The second case is more interesting. A respected gentleman in this city wrote me a few weeks since that his son, connected with a battery of ours at Falmouth, Va., had actually bought, and was wearing, stockings with the mark of the U. S. Sanitary Commission upon them, for which he had paid thirty cents, and that his company had bought and paid for sixty-five pairs at the same rate. This was alarming, indeed. I instantly despatched a messenger to Falmouth, to investigate so damaging and so circumstantial a charge. The story turned out to be exactly true, and yet perfectly false, so far as any unfaithfulness of our agents were concerned. The soldiers had bought the stockings, and paid for them, and a great many other companies had done so too. But how and why? Colonel Ingalls, the U. S. Quartermaster (and there is no more efficient officer in the service) had borrowed of our storekeeper 5000 pairs of stockings, in lack of an immediate supply of his own, which, from obstructed transportation and other reasons, he could not obtain elsewhere to supply to the naked and half-frozen feet of our rank and file, not in the hospitals and among the sick, where our work lies, but in the field and among the well. These stockings, which we could temporarily spare, were to be returned to us by the United States when their stores arrived. We felt that we were in the performance of the very duty we were sent to perform to meet this exigency, which involved so seriously the comfort of our brave fellows, and so we lent the Quartermaster what he needed. But you ask, did he sell the soldiers these stockings? Of course he did. Our soldiers have a certain free allowance of clothing; if they want more they pay for it. They are not paupers, and do not consider themselves, while well, any more objects of charity than any other class. Of course we received no pay, but only our stockings back, at the due time, from the U. S. Quartermaster.

You can see how easy it would be to make at least 5000 reports—one for every pair—of the sale of the U. S. Sanitary Commission stores out of this innocent and creditable operation—each story true, and yet each one a lie, so far as it discredited our agents.

If you ask if it is not imprudent to run so large a risk of injurious imputations? Doubtless; but not so imprudent as to let our poor soldiers' feet freeze to save our delicate reputations at home! I am willing, for one, to do everything right in itself which obvious humanity demands, and let my reputation take care of itself. It can be very poorly founded if it receives any permanent damage from such suspicions.

But I am asking too much room in your report. You are free to publish as much or as little of this off-hand statement as you please.

With cordial gratitude and affection,

Yours in hearty co-operation,

HENRY W. BELLows,

President.

REPORT

REGISTRATION COMMITTEE.

THE Committee on the Registration of Nurses have deemed it proper to close their register, as they have forwarded more than the number of female nurses that they undertook to supply the Government with at the time of the organization of the Woman's Central Association of Relief.

The Committee still take an interest in all subjects respecting the nurse service of women in hospitals, and keep themselves in correspondence with Miss Dix.

REPORT
OF THE FINANCE COMMITTEE.

THE Finance Committee respectfully reports that the Association commenced its business year just closed with a balance of $518 36 in its treasury, and enters upon the present year with a debt of $216 90.

Its receipts by donations and collections from individuals, churches, and auxiliary societies amounted, during the year, to $15,957 37, and its expenditures to $16,692 63.

Of the latter, $13,232 03 was expended by the Supply Committee in the manner detailed in their report, and $2,832 92 in payment of freight on stores, &c., received and distributed. The Registration Committee drew $100, and general expenses, such as rent, storage, insurance, labor, stationery, &c., makes up $527 68.

That so small a sum should cover all the general amount of expenses of the Association in the transaction of a business which, during the year, has involved the receipt or purchase, assorting, cataloguing, marking, packing, storing, and final distribution of nearly half a million of articles, will be no less satisfactory to the donors of the funds so largely economized for the direct benefit of the soldier, than to those friends of the Association from whose self-denying, patriotic, and indefatigable personal labors this economy has resulted.

In conclusion, as money intended for our fund has not unfrequently been sent to the Treasurer of the Sanitary Commission, we would call attention to the fact that this Association, although an auxiliary of the Commission, is as an organization quite independent of, and in fact, ante-dates it; and that all funds intended to forward the distinctive work of the Woman's Central Association of Relief for the Army should be sent directly to it.

For the Finance Committee,

HOWARD POTTER, Chairman.

NEW YORK, May 1st, 1863.

The Agents of the Sanitary Commission, who are scattered all over the country, make frequent reports to the Central office in Washington. They embrace the Department of the Gulf, North Carolina, South Carolina, Norfolk, Va., and the army of the Potomac, as well as the army of the West. From these reports we are permitted to make the following extracts :

DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF,
UNITED STATES SANITARY COMMISSION,
NEW ORLEANS, April 22d, 1863.

My dear Sir : You have already been informed both in our own letters and through the correspondents of the press, of the recent movements of our army up the Teche.

The force employed embraces Grover's and Emory's divisions, together with Weitzel's brigade. The field supplies were fair in quantity although not abundant. Transportation was limited, the design was to advance rapidly into the enemy's country, and camp material of every kind was reduced to a minimum. No tents were taken except shelter tents, not even for hospital purposes. The sick were to be sent back. The expedition was to be provided with (18) eighteen ambulances, one was retained by Dr. Rogers, acting Medical Director of the army in place of Dr. Alexander, the remainder were divided between Drs. Reed and Hartwell, and subject to their orders, Dr. Reed's ambulances did not however come up from Brashier City until after the battle of the 18th ; General Banks left Orleans for Brashier City on Friday.

On reaching Brashier, I found the army already in the field some eight or ten miles distant ; that during most of the day, (Monday) there had been skirmishing principally with artillery, and that Mitchell had gone on with Dr. Rogers.

On Tuesday morning Mr. Mitchell returned to Brashier with an ambulance kindly furnished him by Dr. Hartwell, for the purpose of taking to the front a portion of our field supplies.

Having put into the ambulance a quantity of beef stock, milk, stimulants, crackers, &c., I started from Brashier with Mr. Mitchell, a little after noon, and reached about nine o'clock in the evening head-quarters, which had been advanced beyond Franklin, quite thirty miles from Brashier. On our way out we issued supplies of milk and crackers to the field hospitals, whither our wounded to the number of sixty or seventy had been brought subsequent to the skirmishing of Monday. On reaching head-quarters I first learned that Grover's division, which had been sent around by way of the lake to cut off the retreat of the enemy, had had a sharp fight with him that day, which had resulted in considerable loss to us; over two hundred of our wounded were lying in a sugar house near the Teche, three or four miles above Franklin, about forty of the enemy's wounded had also been brought to the same place. As before indicated, it was proposed to move all needing surgical treatment to the rear, either to New Orleans, Brashier City or some place, not only safe but possessing hospital facilities. To this end, the few wounded who had been brought into Franklin were placed on Wednesday morning on a small boat, the "Carrie" which was ordered to proceed down the Teche, receive on board the wounded from the hospital near Pattersonville, and take them to Brashier City. Orders were also given to the captain of the "Laurel Hill" to proceed with his boat up the Teche, and receive on board the wounded lying at Grover's division hospital. At the special request of Dr. Reed, the Medical Director of Gen. Grover's division, I took charge of this boat, saw that two days rations of beef, pork, tea, sugar, etc., for three hundred men were placed on board, and that the boat was prepared to receive the wounded. Having left Mr. Mitchell to go on with the army, I reached the hospitals with the "Laurel Hill" about two o'clock in the afternoon, and immediately reported to Dr. Peese, of the 6th N. Y. Regt., the surgeon in charge. The work of placing the wounded on board was at once commenced but the hospital was some little distance from the river and our corps of assistance small, we succeeded, however, after impressing into service a few negroes and mule teams, which we found on the plantation, in getting all our wounded comfortably on board the transports, by two o'clock the following evening; about one hundred of the wounded lay on the floor of the main saloon, as many more on the main deck, partially protected by the upper deck and some canvass awnings; most had either a blanket or an overcoat, many had both—many had neither. As the night was quite cool, there was probably more suffering from a want of clothing than from any other cause which it might have been possible for us to remedy.

I saw that all were furnished with a supper of beef broth, made from beef which we had shot and dressed the same afternoon, and with which we were abundantly supplied. The boat started down the river about sunrise, when we all recommenced our labors adjusting, dressing and serving to all beef broth, tea and bread ; late in the morning we had a quantity of most excellent milk punch, made from the milk which I had brought on board, this was administered to those who needed it.

About one o'clock, P.M., we reached Brashier City, within two hours fifteen cars were ready to receive the wounded, all of which, with the exception of about thirty of the severest cases, it was proposed to remove to New Orleans. The work of transferring from boat to the cars was now commenced, and continued until about nine o'clock in the evening. In the meantime I brought on board another supply of milk, by means of which we were able to prepare a large quantity of very nice coffee, several canteens of which were given to each nurse to be issued on the way down, I also purchased all the soft bread which I could find in the town, seven or eight dollars worth, had it cut into slices and buttered, and distributed it myself through the train before it started for New Orleans.

Two facts are noteworthy in the whole of this expedition. First. The wounded had plenty to eat and drink. Second. There were no tedious and wearisome delays in our transportation. Indeed, I think I may say, with truth, that nowhere within the range of my experience have wounded men been transported so great a distance with less discomfort ; and it affords me the greater pleasure to make this statement, as I am representing what has occurred in the far south-west, in a department so remote as to be almost beyond the reach of criticism, as well as inaccessible to that kindly succor which has so often come to the relief of the armies of Virginia and the West.

From a correspondent in the Army of the Potomac.

FREDERICKSBURG.

"On Sunday we saw the capture of Fredericksburg and the heights beyond. From our tents, above the Falmouth station, we could, with a glass, distinctly see the lines of our troops advancing up the heights, and charging over the works. It was gallantly done. As soon as the city was fairly in our possession, it was determined to visit the wounded, who were being brought down and laid in the houses. We crossed the pontoon bridge, the guard allowing us to pass when we told him on what errand we were bound, and had not far to go before subjects enough for our sympathy and assistance came into view. The upper part of the town seemed to be full of the poor fellows, lying in houses and churches and stores. Of course, there was a scarcity of everything. Many ghastly wounds had had only a preliminary dressing. The surgeons had hardly got round all the patients yet, and the point to be first attended to was to get them altogether in the Division hospital.

That was a moment when a little went a great way. It was a time when a morsel of food or a drop of water or wine had ten-fold value. We soon exhausted what little we had carried over with us, and sent for a larger supply, but in the meantime applied ourselves to what little attentions we could bestow. I entered the basement of a church; the floor was bloody and strewn with torn garments. Thirty or forty men lay there, some badly, some slightly wounded. The first one I approached had been shot through the lungs. I stooped and asked him if I could do anything for him. 'Oh, doctor,' he said, 'is there any chance for me? I want you to tell me right away;' and he looked so wistfully into my eyes that I had no heart to say what I feared might be the truth. I answered that I had not examined his wound; it might be less severe than he thought. I would give him a little something to wash his mouth and throat. I gave him some whiskey and water from a spoon, and it made him more comfortable. Poor fellow! his great brown eyes and haggard cheeks haunt me yet. Near him lay a very different character, a bright eager face, with sparkling eyes and exulting smile, challenged me as I passed. 'Ha, Captain, they have pinned you, I see.' 'Yes, they gave me a little clip, but it was so much less than I expected, that I think I came off cheap. I went almost heels over head right into the midst of them, and didn't much expect ever to get out. Well, it was a great thing, wasn't it?" He had been one of the party that carried the lower second range of works, and was so much elated by our success that he hardly remembered his wound—rather a serious fracture of the arm. I gave him a handkerchief—he wanted nothing else—and passed to the next and the next. A little liquor and a lump of sugar, which I offered to each, was very gratefully received by most. Some, however, only wanted to be let alone. They had the greatest dread of being touched; even of being approached. But others seemed to think that the doctor had but to will it to make them whole.

Some of our party visited, in this way, very nearly, if not quite all, those hurt at Fredericksburg on Sunday. We sent a mule load of stores to the various hospitals, where they were generally very gladly received; for although we were assured by those high in authority that everything had been supplied in abundance, those below them could not find the amount so large. The hospital of the Second Division was established in the fine large mansion of Mr. Slaughter, where, in large rooms, with modern conveniences, the patients might have enjoyed great comfort. A gentleman from the Commission went there to assist them, but, alas! no sooner had all been put in good shape, than the attack of the rebels was made, and all had to be cleared out."

From a correspondent.

ACQUIA.

"Among the many places where the Sanitary Commission is at work, none is, I think, so important as Acquia Creek. Through this place pass all the sick men, all the discharged men, and all the wounded from the Army of the Potomac. There is thus a constant stream of men on passage, and they as constantly require help. I have been here several days now, and cannot but be amazed with the infinite variety of calls that are made upon the Commission's agents. One man wants a pair of stockings, the next has no blanket—cannot he get one? the next wants a needle and thread, the next is a civilian looking for some hospital, and nowhere can he get information but from the Sanitary Commission. All this, of course, is incidental, and aside from the regular requisitions which come in from hospital surgeons. Then there is an officer too late for the boat to Washington, and he 'hears that he can stay here over night; is it so?' He is told he can have a berth in the lodge. The hospital steward from Windwell Point wants to know if he can get fifty bed sacks and as many pillow ticks for fifty men just arrived from the front, and the chief surgeon of the cavalry corps hospital comes down himself to see what he can get for a lot of men just sent in. During this whole day, since early morning, there has never been less than three persons, either surgeons or stewards, waiting to have their requisitions filled; and I am happy to say that nearly everything asked for has been furnished. Coffee, tea, chocolate, condensed milk, beef soup, dried fruit, stockings, drawers and shirts, bed and pillow ticks; these are the articles in constant demand. Tin cups and basins, towels, handkerchiefs, white sugar, and liquors are also asked for every hour. Add, that just now every man about the place is busy day and night feeding the wounded, who are arriving a thousand a day, and you may satisfy your neighbor who has complained that goods have been piled away uselessly, instead of being put to service. They were stored away through the winter; how else could a sufficient stock be accumulated to meet such demands as we see at present? Now everything is brought forth, every effort is made to fill all demands, and of course the goods in store are being rapidly exhausted.

I speak as a man outside of the Commission. I was through the late campaign. I saw what our brave soldiers suffered. I am filled with admiration of their fortitude and endurance, and I feel that all we, who are not upon the field, owe them a debt we can never overpay. I have seen the Commission and its work. It has my cordial approval, and I beg all my fellow countrymen and countrywomen to come cordially and earnestly to its assistance. I know that everything sent to its stores goes most surely to the most needy case.

MURFRESBORO, TENN.

May 10th, 1863.

Dr. S. J. NEWBERRY,
 Secretary of Western Department,
 U. S. Sanitary Commission.

Since my last report of the work of the Commission at this point, there have been no important military movements, and no exigencies calling for extraordinary efforts on the part of the Commission except in one particular. About the middle of April much solicitude was expressed by the medical officers of the army, and the agents of the Commission here and at Nashville, at the marked and general increase of scurvy in the different regiments of the army. Serious apprehensions were entertained, not from results then reached but from those that were feared, if the danger could not be promptly arrested. The generous and constant supplies of potatoes and onions, which you procured and forwarded when notified of this, have proved like refreshing showers upon a thirsty land. Upon receipt of your telegram that larger supplies would be provided, I exhibited it to the surgeons, asked them to use the present supply more freely, and requested our store keeper to give out all he had, in quantities that would exhaust the stock in three days, and before the three days had expired, large accessions were received.

"A marked improvement in the health of the men was observed from day to day, and within a fortnight all anxiety was removed."

* * * * *

The work upon the hospital garden has been prosecuted with the most gratifying success. Instead of the twenty acres for which I first asked a supply of seeds and garden tools, the grounds have been increased—tomatoes, cabbages, sweet potatoes, etc., were planted, the seeds up in good condition, and some of it hoed out the first time. The field hospital, near the garden, is a model of neatness, and the excellent surgeon in charge, Dr. Finley, aided by the gardener and the ladies association in the hospital, is exhausting the limited means at his disposal in ornamenting and embellishing it, so as to make it a cheerful home for the sick; they are gathering evergreens and flowering plants from the fields and woods to ornament the streets and walks, and if the professional gardeners of Louisville, Cincinnati, or Cleveland, would send down a few thousand of their verbenas, geraniums, and other out-budding plants, the cheerful home-like character which could thereby be given the grounds, would, I doubt not, do much for the physical and moral health of the men. The cost would be trifling; the influence of the flowers in constant bloom around the tents, and the neat and efficient police of the camp that would be thereby secured, would be of no slight importance.

The answer to letters and telegrams of inquiry from the Hospital Directory at Louisville, and from friends at home who communicate directly with this office, has become an important part of the work here, a work always interesting, though often sad in the information to be communicated. If the hospital records and the long list of casualties at the battle of Stono River, and subsequent skirmishes afford no positive data for answering the inquiry or finding the soldier, recourse is had to the officers of the regiments. At first reliance was placed upon letters to the regiments, but the results were far from satisfactory; now, if the regiment is accessible personal inquiry of the officer of the company and an inspection of the company rolls, is always resorted to if the man cannot be found. This work and the correction of discharge papers is doing much to endear the Commission to the hearts of the soldiery. Heretofore, dealing almost exclusively with the sick and wounded, the able-bodied soldiery in the field, who really mould the public sentiment of the army and communicate it to the people at home, knew but little of the work of the Commission, and the receipt of one box of stale pound cake and mouldy gingerbread for the well men of the regiment, although calculated rather to fill the hospital than relieve the sick, would occasion more congratulatory letters of thanks to the donors, than the receipt of car loads of purely hospital stores. But now, as you visit the regiments, to get the discharge papers corrected and point out to the soldier how he and his comrade can secure all needed assistance on his way home, if discharged, or call around you the comrades of a missing soldier to gather up all the information possible, and receive any clue which will determine his fate, the constant expression you hear is decided and heartfelt, "Thank God, that somebody is doing this work for the soldier."

ARRIVAL OF SICK AND WOUNDED.

“About noon on Wednesday, the hospital car from Alexandria reached Jersey City, filled with sick and wounded soldiers, all of whom had been under fire, and several of them had been in all the battles in Virginia since the commencement of the campaign. The men appeared to be in good spirits, and were overflowing with patriotic devotion to their country. They had been well cared for on the car, fed with the best the market affords, and tenderly nursed. This car is properly called a “hospital car,” and was fitted up by direction of the Sanitary Commission, under the immediate supervision of Dr. Harris. It is one of the old cars, that had to run the gauntlet of the secession mob at Baltimore, on the 19th of April, 1861; the bullet holes and dents made by bricks and paving stones hurled at the Massachusetts volunteers are plainly seen; indeed, they have been saved as a part of the hieroglyphical history of the rebellion.

“The laws of ventilation have been strictly observed in the construction of this car, so that the passengers are constantly supplied with an abundance of fresh air. The beds rest on stretchers, which are swung on India rubber belts or loops, three deep on each side of the car. These stretchers can be lifted in and out of the car without pain or inconvenience to the patients. There is a cook room and medical chest on board, and stoves that warm the atmosphere without cooking it.

“The men were put on board the car on Tuesday, at two o'clock, at Alexandria, and reached Jersey City a little after twelve on Wednesday; they slept most of the way. They were in charge of Dr. Harris, of the Sanitary Commission, who was assisted by Dr. Sol. Andrews, Jr., James Carnagan, the steward, Mr. E. E. Kelly, of the New E. S. R. Association at Washington, and one or two others.

"The steamer Thomas P. Way was lying at the dock ready to receive the men, and convey them to the hospital on David's Island.

"A good dinner was provided for them on board, and no effort spared to contribute to the comfort of the patients."

HOSPITAL CARS.

"We have just enjoyed the privilege of examining a hospital car, built by the Camden and Amboy Rail Road Company for the Sanitary Commission. It is so admirable in construction, so complete and compact in its appointments, that the country should know to whom it is indebted for such tender care of its wounded soldiers.

"The car contains twenty-four beds on stretchers, neatly furnished with mattresses, hair pillows, and bed linen. These are suspended from stanchions by elastic rings, technically "tugs," so adjusted that there is no jar to the patient; and upon the arrival of the car, each stretcher can be removed without disturbance to its inmate. By this arrangement, a severely wounded man can be brought from the hospital in Washington, or even from the field, through to the hospital near New York without being lifted from his bed.

"The broad passage through the centre gives an air of commodiousness unexpected in a rail car. At one end is a lounge, beneath which are two large drawers, containing wrappers, change of under-clothing, sleeping caps, slippers, in fact, all the comforts of a regular city hospital. Opposite the lounge is a concentrated pantry, for how else shall we properly designate this marvel of nutritious and medical supplies, of culinary apparatus which prepares twelve quarts at one time, and with just space enough in the centre for the dispenser of all these blessings to turn as on a pivot? At the other end are the usual water arrangements. Five large invalid spring chairs, a new invention, adapted for a half-reclining or sitting posture, are an additional luxury.

"The ventilation is perfect. Besides that from above, Dr. Harris has introduced a contrivance of his own, which has proved successful. A large cylinder, with flaring lip, protected from cinders and dust by a fine screen, enters the roof, and comes down nearly to the floor, where it is perforated. It thus receives the rush of air as the car moves, and distributes it, so that the lower beds are as thoroughly ventilated as the upper.

"When we add that the light is softened by curtains of drab and blue, that a speaking tube conveys its important whisper, that a step ladder is transformed into a table, and lastly, that no man is allowed to leave the car hungry, we surely stamp perfection upon this moving hospital.

"Dr. Andrews, surgeon in the U. S. Army, has the care of this hospital car, which runs between New York and Washington. Several rail road companies have built similar ones, thus proving their generous solicitude for our soldiers.

The Sanitary Commission have recently been much gratified by learning that one of its California contributors, who was an officer, and had been badly wounded, came on in this car. Fully sensible of the ingenuity and tender sympathy which it exhibited, he touchingly remarked that 'he little dreamed when he gave his mite to the Commission that he should soon have it returned to him ten-fold.'"

Many of these Societies no longer send their contributions directly to us, but to the more recently established Branches of the Commission at Boston and Philadelphia, as well as to centres of collection, such as Albany, Syracuse, New Haven, &c., from which they are forwarded.

If any mistakes or omissions occur in the above, we shall be very glad to have them pointed out that we may correct them
